Clinical & Interpretive

Clinical Information

Coagulation factor inhibitors arise in patients who are congenitally deficient in a specific factor in response to factor replacement therapy or can occur spontaneously without known cause or in response to a variety of medical conditions, including the postpartum state, immunologic disorders, certain antibiotic therapies, and some malignancies, as well as in the older adult population.

Inhibitors of factor VIII coagulant activity are the most commonly occurring of the specific factor inhibitors.

Reference Values

Only orderable as a reflex. For more information see 7INHE / Factor VII Inhibitor Evaluation, Plasma.

An interpretive report will be provided.

Interpretation

When no significant abnormalities are detected, a simple descriptive interpretation is provided. When abnormal results are detected, a detailed interpretation is given, including an overview of the results and of their significance, a correlation to available clinical information, and elements of differential diagnosis.

Cautions

No significant cautionary statements
